STATEWIDE REDISTRICTING MEETINGS TO BEGIN

The Louisiana Legislature's joint statewide public meetings by the House and Senate Governmental Affairs committees on the upcoming redistricting process begin this month. A meeting schedule follows this news release.

The joint committee will show the current district maps for each of the various elected bodies with the new 2010 Census population figures for such districts and discuss which districts no longer meet population guidelines and/or legal requirements.

It is important for the public to participate in these meetings and make their opinions known so that the committees may consider public input as plans are drafted and discussed.

In an effort to allow for maximum participation in the process, all meetings will be streamed live over the Internet and archived. Further, comments and questions can be submitted via Facebook, Twitter, MySpace and other social media sites. Information about the social media sites is available at http://house.louisiana.gov/H_Redistricting2011/ which also includes up-to-date information on all aspects of the redistricting process.

Public comments submitted in any format will be taken into consideration as plans are drafted.

Concerning public participation, House and Governmental Affairs Chairman Rick Gallot said, "All Louisiana citizens have a vital interest in our redistricting process and in the election districts for elected offices in Louisiana. Now is the time for the public's opinions and voices to be heard concerning the makeup of these election districts. With our meetings being held around the state and the use of the Internet and social media further making our process accessible, all citizens may easily participate in our redistricting process."

A special session to adopt redistricting plans will convene on March 20th and must end no later than April 13th. With the regular legislative session beginning on April 25, this will give the legislature a short time to complete the redistricting process, as the plans must be submitted to the U. S. Justice Dept. for pre-approval. The department then has at least 60 days to either approve or reject the plan. Additionally, qualifying for most offices affected by redistricting begins September 6.

The legislature is required to re-draw congressional, state legislative, Public Service Commission, Board of Elementary and Secondary Education (BESE), Courts of Appeal and Supreme Court districts.

Due to the lack of population growth over the last 10 years, Louisiana will lose a congressional seat, reducing that number to six. Federal and state districts will change due to the population shifts in the state, including those resulting from the hurricanes in 2005.
